

Taking Care of Business 'Fix it in Post' – Post Production Company Support Package

To assist in business capability development to advance culture by bringing Western Australian stories and identity to screen for the benefit of the community.

What is it for?

Fix it In Post is a one-time special purpose sustainability fund aimed at assisting Western Australian post production companies to develop or repurpose their business and to continue to contribute to the screen industry during the COVID-19 crisis.

This fund acknowledges the importance of a vibrant post production sector to the Western Australian Screen Industry and the long impact of delays in production activity. It aims to ensure a healthy post production sector after the COVID-19 crisis and into the future so far as is possible.

This fund is separated into two tiers providing support to a range of companies depending on their levels of experience, company needs and recent and anticipated contributions to the Western Australian screen industry.

Application budgets may include funds to repurpose their business models, for company development, for company principals themselves and to assist their own cash flow over the coming six months.

It is not anticipated that the funds available through this initiative will, on their own, be sufficient to enable companies to maintain anticipated company costs. 'Fix it in Post' is part of a package of assistance for the WA screen sector that represents the maximum funds that Screenwest has been able to repurpose in response to the current situation.

Companies are encouraged to seek all available Federal and State business assistance in addition to this support package.

Successful applicants of Fix It In Post funding support are still eligible to apply for other Screenwest development and production program funds.
